

Engaging civil society in the energy transition: The role of grids

3 November 2020, 9:00 CET - Virtual Event

Registration: <https://cutt.ly/Ogvmdvm>

Time (CET)	Description	Presenter
9:00	Welcome and context-setting	Dr. Sven Teske, University of Technology Sydney
9:05	Role of civil society and infrastructure planning in reaching high shares of renewable energy	Antina Sander, Renewables Grid Initiative
9:25	Engaging civil society input for grid planning processes: Experiences from the PAC project	Wendel Trio, Climate Action Network Europe
		Patrick ten Brink, European Environmental Bureau
9:45	Presentations of case studies on grid planning and civil society engagement (10 minutes each + Q&A)	Australian perspective – Natasha Sinclair, Australia Energy Market Operator (AEMO) Japanese perspective – Teruo Ohno, TEPCO Power Grid, Inc. European perspective – Dante Powell, European Network of Transmission System Operators for Electricity (ENTSO-E)
10:30	Your turn! Three breakout sessions with an opportunity to network, exchange views and discuss the civil society involvement in grid planning.	All participants with cameras and microphones turned on.
10:55	Wrap up and closing
11:00	End of event

To learn more about the topic and download supplemental materials, please visit:

<https://www.ren21.net/civil-society-grids/>